GOLF POPULAR WITH AMATEURS

SACRAMENTO, March 27. The Municipal Golf Club, through a campaign inaugurated by J. E. Langdon, its president, has aroused popular enthusiasm in the ancient game and the nine-hole course owned by the city now is one of the most frequented recreation centers hereabouts.

At an Elks lodge tournament a Christy, who never had played the game, went as a spectator. He saw and liked it, grew enthusiastic and with a mid iron and a borrowed ball entered and won the tournament.

The municipal course was established in 1914 when eighteen holes were laid out in Del Paso park and since that time the course followed and down a hill dotted with oaks and dense a winding stream. Only nine holes, however, were put in shape for play.

SHADING PRICE OF RED METAL

BOSTON, March 27. The natural bull which followed the big copper buying movement (culminating on January 15) has developed into a very sluggish metal market. Copper can be purchased with little or no effort in New York; even the larger producers are willing to shade quotations. A sale of considerably over 1,000,000 pounds was negotiated early this week for immediate delivery at 18 1/2 cents per pound; the seller could furnish and would do business on anything over 2,000,000 pounds for three months' delivery at 18 cents per pound.

At the present time there is estimated to be approximately 200,000,000 pounds of copper in refined shape ready for immediate sale and delivery. Knowing this, consumers are not bothering to load up with metal but are living on a day to day basis. In the middle of January it was estimated that 200,000,000 pounds of copper had been contracted for in the preceding three months. Some of the largest consumers have done much since and the estimated independent have been increased.

The production of a second copper producing company says by the Boston News Bureau. The copper industry has never fully recovered from the effects of the war. While the way consumption of copper was there was more metal left in surplus at the end of the war than at any other time in the history of the industry. It was now producing every month 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 pounds of copper in this country, including that from South America. Domestic consumption is heavy, but the production capacity is still at least 50 percent through 1920 to 100 percent of the war time, and with the European demand to speak of that our copper companies have to almost cut back their efforts to do any business.

"I am not loading up," I believe, said one copper buyer for some months. "I am not loading up," I believe, said one copper buyer for some months. "I am not loading up," I believe, said one copper buyer for some months. "I am not loading up," I believe, said one copper buyer for some months.

The brass industry of the copper industry seems to have all the copper they want and there seems to be no difficulty in getting the immediate delivery on large quantities.

Finally, speaking there is no money in producing copper at current quotations. Many of the producers can make little more than a new dollar for an old when they have depreciation and reserves for one suggestion are included in the price.

When copper prices today are as high as they were at the end of the war, in no instance have they come down and they are now rising and very scarce.

The production of the copper industry for industrial plants has increased by 100 percent since the war. The production of the copper industry for industrial plants has increased by 100 percent since the war.
